

The evidence surrounds us: the future is demanding something far more of physicians — something beyond the ability to quickly register symptoms, set broken bones, and stitch together wounds.

The future is demanding resilient, empathetic healers with a broader understanding of the social and racial contexts that impact our patients' health. It's demanding physicians who are prepared to lead.

Enter AMSA.

For 70 years, we as an organization have worked alongside medical schools, helping you foster, educate, and train “the whole student” — so we can evolve into tomorrow's influencers and leaders: empathetic healers.
